1036	Colt Model 1847 Walker single action revolver. - Cal. 44 Percussion. 9" part octagon bbl. C Company No. 122. All steel parts are the same excellent untouched dark brown patina. Metal surfaces are generally excellent, with just a few minor dings in some areas of very light roughness mostly on barrel assembly and loading lever. The Company number on the left barrel flat and "US/1847" on the right are crisp, clear and distinct. The barrel address is excellent with just a hint of light roughness around it. The cylinder scene is faint with traces overall and a couple areas are more clearly visible. The pressure ridge is clearly visible all the way around and the Company number is clear and distinct. The wedge and loading lever plunger are very old replacements, done in the period of the guns use. Two very minor interior parts (trigger/bolt spring and hand) and three screws are the only replacements dating from the period of the guns use. Only the (always replaced) loading lever retaining spring is a modern replacement, crudely staked in. The bore has some roughness and rust but retains significant sharp rifling. The frame is the same patina with smooth metal, sharp unworn edges and all internal numbers in their proper places. Mechanics are excellent and screws are generally unmarred. Only three screws are replaced: forward trigger guard, loading lever plunger and one back strap screw. These were replaced in the period of the guns use. Brass trigger guard and front grip strap are an excellent patina with the usual tiny dings and scratches of use. The steel back strap is an excellent untouched dark brown patina as other steel parts with well marked Company number on the butt. The original grips numbered in the usual location are quite worn and rounded at butt edge with a 7/16" chip replaced at the left toe and a larger (5/8" x 1 1/2") at the left side frame juncture, original and all there-but only held in place by the frame and trigger guard. The gun is otherwise completely original; all parts properly and distinctly numbered to match. This is a fine Walker far above average for these guns. This gun can be called "untouched" and is virtually completely original. The known provenance of this gun dates to 1943 when it was discovered in Austin Texas.
